Research on teaching physical education concentrates on teaching effectiveness from the perspectives of teachers and students.

Research on teacher education focuses on teacher training and development.

Curriculum researchers study what is taught, why teachers select content for their classes, how teachers’ values influence curriculum selection and implementation, and the process by which curriculum is designed.

[Silverman, 2003]